

STUDY SPACES ON CAMPUS

Finding the right study space is equally as important as how you study. Here are a few things to consider when looking for a study space.

Individual Study

- Find a quiet space that will allow you to focus on the task at hand
- A space that has easy access to materials and resources
- Try to find a space with as few distractions as possible
- You want to be comfortable... you will work best when relaxed, but not so comfortable you fall asleep

Group Study

- Find a large enough space to facilitate group work
- You want a space that allows for healthy discussion and debate, but...
- Quiet enough so you don't have a lot of interruptions or social drop-ins

Study Spaces on Campus

- The Dr. Daniel O'Brien Study Hall in McCain Hall is a great place to study quietly with access to computers
- The Harriet Irving Library offers individual and group study lounges, learning commons, reading rooms and computer labs
- If you live in Residence there are several shared study lounges, good for either individual or group study
- Try the Great Hall on the second floor of GMH for a more relaxed, comfy place to study individually or in a group. Grab a coffee while you're at it
- The OC Lounge in JDH can be a good study spot, but it is a place for social gathering as well. You may want to consider this space for group work. If you are easily distracted, this may not be the place for you

- If you're in JDH and looking for a quieter space for some individual study time, try the second floor lounge (next to the Wabanaki Centre). There are a few tables and chairs set up around the corner from JDH 204 as well
- You can grab lunch or a coffee and settle into the JDH cafeteria for some study time. Just remember this is a busier spot which tends to see a lot of traffic
- If you are looking for a quieter space that offers access to computers, you may want to try the Rotunda on the third floor of BMH

Computer Labs

- Brian Mulroney Hall Rotunda (room 318)- offers black & white, single-sided printing
